Unemployment fell more quickly in the previous three months than since records began back in 1972, according to the Office for National Statistics. With the ever-widening talent gap this fall is creating, it is becoming even more critical to rapidly build talent pipelines to reach the elite talent you need ahead of your competitors.

Our Enterprise Social Networks provide you with an outstanding ability to rapidly build talent pipelines by leveraging the power of all your employees.

Leveraging the power of your employees to rapidly build talent pipelines

40%
of new starters invite new talent
in their first week

New starters, for example, are a great source of talent connections. Across all of our clients' networks we find that 40% of all new starters invite new talent within the first week of their employment.

Imagine what that would do for your recruitment efforts!
